Q Should I be using a lip liner with lip gloss?

A "You don't necessarily have to," says Theo Kogan, NYC-based makeup artist and founder of Armour Beauty. "But it's especially helpful if your gloss tends to feather out!" Lining lips gives gloss something to adhere to, keeping it in place. It also adds definition, creating the illusion of a fuller pout. If you decide to use it, pick a liner that matches your gloss. Trace around the perimeter of your lips, then fill in your entire top and bottom lip.

Top it with gloss and your color should stay put longer!

Expert Tip:

To perfect the edges of your lips, touch them up with concealer after applying lip liner!

Q My scalp got so sunburned! Is there anything I can do to relieve the discomfort?

A Got milk? Soak a washcloth in ice-cold 2 percent milk and apply it directly to the scalp for at least 10 minutes. The proteins and enzymes in milk promote healing, while the cold temperature works to reduce inflammation. In the future, prevent your scalp from burning by wearing a hat or keeping your hair slicked and tied back so that none of your scalp is exposed to direct sunlight.

Q Sunscreen makes me break out. How can I protect my skin from the sun without worrying about blemishes?

A "Look for sunscreens with a 'noncomedogenic' label," says NYC-based dermatologist Dr. Gary Goldenberg. Noncomedogenic formulas are oil-free, which means they won't clog pores and cause breakouts. And after a long day in the sun, be sure to exfoliate dead skin away, then moisturize!
