Kate’s Joy
PREGNANT AND NAMED QUEEN!

As public backlash grows against Charles and Camilla, the queen decides that only William and Kate can save the monarchy. Now Kate’s friends reveal she has even more to celebrate — baby No. 3 is on the way. All the dramatic details
I don’t have anything against Botox!” declares former countess and Real Housewives of New York City star Luann de Lesseps. Indeed, experts tell Life & Style they see evidence of Botox injections and other cosmetic tweaks, all of which are keeping the newly single 52-year-old (she and husband Tom D’Agostino are splitting after just seven months of marriage) in tip-top shape. (Adds her spokesperson: “Luann has tried it all and doesn’t hide from it. It’s called maintenance.”) “Laser resurfacing has made her skin look softer and smoother,” says plastic surgeon Dr. Lyle Back, who, like the other doctors quoted here, hasn’t worked with the reality star. Dermatologist Dr. Gary Goldenberg thinks Luann’s had fillers in her cheeks and jawline. “The contouring is well-done,” he says. And while plastic surgeon Dr. Kirk Brandow thinks her facial fillers “are overdone,” plastic surgeon Dr. Josef Hadeed thinks Luann should stick with what she’s been doing. “She looks, he says, “just as a woman her age should!”

“She looks youthful and not overdone.”
— Dr. Lyle Back

Luann’s Classy Cleanup

FOREHEAD
Dr. Goldenberg notes that Luann’s forehead is as smooth now as it was nearly a decade ago and chalks it up to Botox. Cost per treatment: $900–$1,200.

EYES
“Her undereye area appears to be fuller,” says Dr. Hadeed, “which may be the result of fillers.” He says the cost of fillers in that area ranges from $600–$1,200.

CHEEKS
Dr. Back is impressed by Luann’s contours. “Her cheeks seem well-plumped,” he says, estimating she spends in the neighborhood of $8K a year on fillers.

SKIN
The star’s “pores are smaller now,” says Dr. Goldenberg. “She doesn’t have a lot of sun damage.” He thinks she’s used microneedling or laser resurfacing ($1,500–$2,500).