

Snag One of These Facial Cleansing Brushes to Rev Up Your Skincare Routine

There are a lot of different ways to wash your face. Some people simply use soap and water, others reach for a wash cloth, and others prefer the help of a facial cleansing brush. The best facial cleansing brushes can leave you with exfoliated, smooth skin without the need to visit a professional.

“Facial cleansing brushes help to deeply cleanse the skin by removing dirt, oil, and makeup more effectively than manual cleansing alone,” says board-certified dermatologist Ife J. Rodney, M.D., founding director of Eternal Dermatology Aesthetics and professor of dermatology at Howard University and George Washington University. “The bristles of the brush can also gently exfoliate the skin, promoting cell turnover and improving skin texture.”

The massaging action of the brush can enhance your circulation and stimulate lymphatic drainage, leading to a brighter and more radiant complexion, Dr. Rodney says. “This device is not necessary for cleansing the face but is simply a useful addition to anyone’s skincare routine,” she adds.

But some experts share concerns about using a facial cleansing brush. “Facial brushes can be abrasive and overly harsh,” says Susan Massick, M.D., a board-certified dermatologist at The Ohio State University Wexner Medical Center. Some facial cleansing brushes can also irritate the skin and pick at acne lesions, leading to worse issues, says Gary Goldenberg, M.D., is a New York-based board-certified dermatologist. “However, some patients with oily skin may benefit from mechanical cleansing if using the tool several times per week,” he says.

Sure, a facial cleansing brush isn't for everyone (if you have psoriasis, eczema, or severe acne on your face, experts say it's best to take a pass). But if you feel like your standard washcloth isn't cutting it, this is a tool worth looking into. Interested in trying one out? Consider these options.

Flawless Cleanse Silicone Face Scrubber

This pretty cleansing brush provides two vibrating speeds to help clean out dirt, oil, and other gunk on your face. "Soft silicone bristles provide a gentle clean," Dr. Rodney says. It's also waterproof, so you can take it in the shower. Flip through four modes—gentle, pulsating, massage, and deep cleanse.

What the Reviews Say: "I have used this brush a few times now, first just on gentle and massage to be safe, then on deep cleanse. Both times my skin felt AMAZING the next morning," shared a fan. "The soft silicone bristles are so gentle on my sensitive skin yet so effective. My skin feels so smooth now and any spots I had before using it have minimized."

How to choose the best facial cleansing brushes

Consider these elements when choosing the best facial cleansing brush for yourself:

- Water resistance. Not all facial cleansers are water resistant, but doctors say this is an important feature to have. Dr. Rodney points out that you'll probably want to use it in the shower.
 - Modes. While you'll probably find a favorite setting, it's not a bad idea to find a brush with different modes. "I would look for a device with more than one cleaning setting that can be adjusted to skin sensitivity and level of cleaning," Dr. Goldenberg says.
 - Materials. Experts warn against getting a brush that will be too harsh on your skin. "Choose one that has soft bristles or is made of silicone," Dr. Massick says.
 - Ease of cleaning. Your facial cleansing brush needs to be cleaned, too. "A device that's easy to clean is favored, since bacteria and debris can stay on the brush," Dr. Goldenberg says.

How we chose the best facial cleansing brushes

To choose the best facial cleansing brushes, we consulted with three dermatologists for their input on what to look for in these products, along with features to avoid. We then looked at the most popular facial cleansing brushes on the market and analyzed each for elements like power, ease of cleaning, and modes. Reviews from real owners were also considered to make sure we had the best sense of how these devices perform for a range of people.
