With summer on the horizon, we're all looking to add a little extra color to our skin. What if I told you I had the best tanning solution for a radiant glow that almost looks too good to be true?

No need to wait for summer to show up here, the Sunny Honey Bali Bronzing Foam will get you the early tan you need, without the mess or fuss. It's a top seller at Coco & Eve, and for good reason — shoppers say this is the most natural-looking tan they've ever gotten from a product.

Sunny Honey Bali Bronzing Foam

This self-tanning mousse can get you a beautiful, dark tan that looks natural. The tan itself can last you up to a week, and works well for all skin types and shades. It's also a top-seller, with a 4.8-star rating on the brand's website.

The mousse itself is lightweight and non-sticky. It glides onto your skin easily, and a small amount can go a long way. The product dries quickly on your skin, which means it won't transfer onto your clothes or towel either. Leave it on for around six hours (or longer), depending on how deep a tan you're looking for. That said, if you want a lighter tan, all you need is two hours with it on.

I love the fact that the tan is basically customizable in this bottle. You can go from light to dark depending on how long you keep the mousse on for. The subtle guava scent also takes away that “chemical” smell most self-tanners have, which is a big plus.

This self-tanning mousse is also non-irritating and works for all skin types. The brand says its included ingredients have a low comedogenic rating, which means they won't clog pores or cause breakouts.

It has a 4.8-star rating on Coco & Eve's website, and all the reviews point to one clear thing: this self-tanning mousse is great for all skin tones. “I have really fair skin and I think this applied beautifully without being too dark for my skin,” says one shopper.

“I'm a full-time SoulCycle instructor, aka I'm always in my sweat, and this is literally the only formula that not only gives the most incredible glow but lasts for a solid week without getting streaky,” adds another.

Shop the Sunny Honey Bali Bronzing Foam now before stocks sell out and get your summer-ready glow just in time for warm days ahead.
